Important information about search engine behaviour

All major search engines index changes to websites at their own pace. Predicting these changes with any accuracy is, unfortunately, impossible. Any individual or company other than the search engines and those who work for them cannot know for sure! The generally agreed upon period of time between a new link appearing 'live' on a website and most engines picking up on this fact is 2 – 12 weeks. Therefore, if your website has any backlinks before two weeks it is a great result!

Details about this report

This report has been created specifically for your website as a result of our close monitoring of your link campaign. If you have paid for additional reporting, this will be the first report to outline your initial link status. If you haven't yet ordered additional reporting, please contact us to make arrangements.

What follows is a summary of the domains linking to your website as a direct result of our manual research and linkwork. We also include a specific link URL for your convenience. A reminder: you will not see the full fruits of your link campaign until 12 weeks have passed.

What Next?

*Recent research has shown that parallel link campaigns run simultaneously can be potentially detrimental to the overall ranking of your website. However, if one is careful about what types of campaigns are run simultaneously there are large benefits to be gained from encouraging the search engines to notice your site immediately rather than in small amounts at a time. Have you done the most you can to fully optimise your website for the impending new links it will soon have? Ask us about our site optimisation services.

Summary

Your campaign has got off to a fantastic start with 67 new one way links already appearing in the search engines such as Google, MSN and Yahoo!. Your custom written original article has been accepted by many more websites however – so sit back and relax as your new links continue to do the hard work for you. If you would like to contact me about any aspect of your campaign, please do not hesitate – my email is david@articlesubmission.net.
